Code of Conduct at IPVC 2023 (35th International Papillomavirus Conference & Basic, Clinical and Public Health Scientific Workshops)

IPVC 2023 (35th International Papillomavirus Conference & Basic, Clinical and Public Health Scientific Workshops) is a professional scientific event that provide a respectful, harassment-free and inclusive environment for all participants, regardless of gender identity, sexual orientation, disability, appearance, ethnicity, race, national origin, age or religion.

All delegates, including speakers, exhibitors, media, staff, and other participants are expected to behave with integrity and respect towards other delegates attending or involved with IPVC 2023 or any related event, activity or third-party related platform.

IPVC 2023 is committed to informing Conference delegates about the code of conduct for event attendees, as well as ensuring that procedures and guidance for appropriate reporting of unacceptable behavior of any kind are made available to all those involved. The present code of conduct is not a legal document or prescriptive in nature. It supplements, but does not affect, the application of other relevant policies, regulations, rules and laws, including laws regulating the premises or platform in which IPVC 2023 takes place, third party related platforms, and any applicable host country agreement if the event takes place in a physical venue. IPVC 2023 complies with such policies and will report all inappropriate conduct accordingly. Conference delegates will be provided with personalized credentials allowing them access to the Virtual Conference. These credentials are personal and non-transferable. Non-registered individuals, patient parent/relatives, other members of the public and minors will not be able to access the Virtual Conference, unless upon prior agreement with the Virtual Conference organizers.

Throughout the Virtual Conference, all meeting delegates are expected to interact with fellow attendees in the following manner:

- All communication, be it verbal or electronic, must be carried out in a respectful and polite manner. Inappropriate messaging or contact will not be tolerated.
- Live sessions during the Conference will be moderated. Delegates are expected to respect the choices of the moderator in selecting questions or comments, managing session times, etc.
- Any recording, filming, photography, screenshots or other capturing of presentations, live sessions or other events, including scientific E-Posters, taking place during, or associated with, IPVC 2023, is prohibited without the express consent of the presenter. Express consent is a written confirmation by the author in a live chat or email correspondence.

Host institutions of reported individuals will be notified about filed harassment reports. Attendees of IPVC 2023 are required to respect the privacy of other participants and refrain from any unauthorized or unwelcome recording or photography, including recording of any direct or indirect interactions or electronic messaging with other Conference delegates. Participants are not allowed to take photos or videos of scientific material shown unless express prior consent by the presenter has been ascertained. Moreover, integral recording of complete oral presentations is not allowed unless these are done by a professional entity that has been contracted for this purpose by or on behalf of the organizer.

Taking photos and recordings within the Conference environment for professional use is not allowed without obtaining prior permission from the organizer.

IPVC 2023 adheres to the copyright laws guiding the appropriate sharing of scientific research material, including data. Authors' consent may be requested by IPVC 2023 in case sharing of scientific material from abstracts/posters/presentations will be required as part of IPVC 2023 educational activities.

- As detailed under "Online behaviour at the IPVC 2023", any recording, filming, photography, screenshots or other capturing of presentations, live sessions or other events, including scientific posters, taking place during, or associated with IPVC 2023, is prohibited without the express consent of the presenter. Express consent is a written confirmation by the author in a live chat or email correspondence.

Presenters and exhibitors are strongly encouraged to clearly indicate whether or not photography/recording of the poster, presentation, or exhibit booth and sharing/remixing of the material is permitted. For the purpose of these guidelines, harassment consists of improper or unwelcome conduct that might reasonably be perceived as causing offence or humiliation to another person. Harassment may involve any conduct of a verbal, non-verbal or physical nature, including written and electronic communication, and may occur between persons of the same or different genders. Harassment in any form is not tolerated at the Conference.

Examples of harassment include, but are not limited to:

- Verbal comments that reinforce social structures of domination related to gender, gender identity, sexual orientation, disability, physical appearance, body size, ethnicity, race, age, religion, political affiliation. The production or non-consensual sharing of harassing non-consensual photography or unwanted recording, including sexual images in public spaces (in any format, electronic or otherwise).

- Deliberate intimidation, stalking or following.
- Sustained disruption of talks, sessions or other events.
- Inappropriate contact, including via electronic communications.
- Unwelcome sexual attention.
- Advocating for, or encouraging, any of the above behaviours.

All data and scientific research that is presented at IPVC 2023 shall be based on original research findings that have been derived from procedures and experiments that adhere to the accepted guidelines for good ethical and experimental research conduct. Presenters are responsible for the content of their presentations, whether oral or written, and shall secure appropriate consent from collaborators and funders, as relevant, prior to any presentation at IPVC 2023. IPVC 2023 encourages open and respectful discussions on social media platforms. Nonetheless, participants are requested to not post images or video online without obtaining appropriate permission. Participants are requested to respect any request from an author not to disseminate the contents of their presentation/poster. IPVC 2023 and organizers reserve the right to take any action as deemed necessary as a consequence of any breach of the present Code of Conduct. This includes reporting to host institutions and permanent removal of IPVC 2023 credentials.

In case of a breach of the Code of Conduct, the concerned individuals are requested to contact a member of IPVC 2023 staff via the live chat support of IPVC 2023 platform or by email to ipvc2023@kenes.com.

IPVC 2023 reserves all rights to take any action to prevent and report violations of the Code of Conduct, including blocking access to IPVC 2023 and filing a police report when appropriate. IPVC 2023 cannot investigate reports of harassment or other misconduct during the Conference but will inform the appropriate departments of the accused person's host institution about any such filed report.
